NO. 55.

MR. TILDEN WILL CONTEST.

He tells a Man in Front of the "Herald" Office that He will Push His Claim, and Make a Variety of Remarks on the Politics of the Day.

(From the New York Herald, Nov. 20th.)

It was past the hour of high noon yesterday, and the Trinity chimes were about to call the denizens of Wall street to their midday cheer, when the usual throng of bankers, brokers, railway presidents, directors of et cetera quietly but promptly made its way toward the terminus of the horse cars in front of the Herald office. Quietly and unobtrusively among the throng walked the late Democratic candidate for President of the United States, Samuel J. Tilden. He was jostled at and trod upon—walking slowly as he did—by the more energetic mass of Young America that moved onward roused and about him and that did not know him. Dressed in a very ordinary blue chinchilla overcoat, a bit like a Parisian but, the brain being considerably more excited than the New York Fan style of the season allows, he was the most unobtrusive of all that trod along the pavement of the east side of Broadway. He certainly would have remained unobserved but for the accidental recognition on the part of a gentleman who had known the ex-Governor of the State of New York during his temporary residence at Albany. With an eye always to the windward of the ex-Governor was not in the least astonished when addressed by this gentleman, and at once entered into a spirited conversation with him, commencing with the inquiry, "Governor, how do you feel?"

"Never felt better in my life," responded Mr. Tilden. His appearance indicated that he was in the best of health and spirits, and he was communicative in an unusual degree. "What do you think, Governor," continued his interlocutor, "of the policy President Hayes is pursuing?" "I think he is continuing the policy of the Republican party," replied Mr. Tilden.

"Is he breaking up the party in your opinion?"

"He will have no party very soon," replied Mr. Tilden; "he will in three years from now have no more support than a corporal's guard."

"Then you think, Gov. Tilden, that he will alienate from his support both Democrats and Republicans?"

"I think so. The South appears to be disposed to put him on the back and urge him forward in his work of reconstruction, but will they stand by him?"

"What do you suppose they will do, Governor?"

"Well I suppose they will do as they always did, support none but a true blooded Democrat that will represent them."

"Then you think that these ovations to President Hayes in the different Southern States were assumed for a purpose. Were insincere, in fact?"

"It was all humbug," replied Mr. Tilden, with emphasis. "It can't be that these Southern Democrats will accept an administration which they must know is founded on fraud and which is Republican in spite of everything."

"But they do accept it, Mr. Tilden."

"Yes, they do accept it, but you know the present administration is falling to pieces, and where it will end heaven only knows."

"Do you purpose prosecuting your right to the Presidential chair?"

"Certainly I do," answered Mr. Tilden spiritedly. "The country knows that I was legally elected President, and this American people is too intelligent to forget that one glaring and paramount fact. On that fact the very foundations of the republic rest. If the voice of a nation be not realized in the serious question of election of its supreme ruler then you may calculate on bitterness of feeling that will not be assuaged until the wrong is righted. The people who supported me feel to-day that their votes were given in vain. They feel that they might as well have cast their suffrages for a dummy and they number so large a portion of the population of the whole country that it is an unwise experiment to trifle with their rights. As far as I am concerned it is of little consequence, but I tell you one of the greatest principles in representative government is involved, and if the people do not see to it the matter will be a subject for deep regret to coming generations."

"What do you think of the action of the Senate in the case of the Southern Senators?"

"Well, as I said before, the administration and the Republican party are going to pieces. Mr. Hayes has no color and the Republican party has no policy."

"You appear, Governor, to feel a distrust of the Southern support of Hayes?"

"Humbug," responded the Governor, contemptuously. "You can't mix oil and water," and then he looked around, saw what astonished him, and walked briskly off, entered a Broadway stage and drove up town. When the great candidate halted, and began his conversation with the gentleman who had kept his attention engrossed, it was not long before a crowd assembled, of at least five hundred persons. The word had passed around that the elderly gentleman with a book under his arm and a bundle of newspapers sticking out of his pockets was the notable Sammy Tilden. People who had never seen him before doubted the report and lingered at it, but they were soon convinced that the man who had created so much stir throughout the country and who had carried the majority of the popular vote, if not of the various States with him, was actually before them, then and there. The Herald steps were at once filled with an incongruous mass of people.

IOWA'S WEALTH.

A Claim That She Is the Richest State in the Union—Her Crops and Other Resources.

(From the New York Sun.)

Cerro Gordo County, Northern Iowa, Nov. 12.—You in the east can have no possible conception of the magnitude of the western crops. Take this county, Cerro Gordo—and there are ninety eight other counties in the State just as large—I find the yield of which alone will be over one million bushels. It will be one hundred and fifty bushels to each man, woman and child in the county, three hundred bushels to every male, and about five hundred bushels to every able bodied man, and pork and corn in the same proportion. It is safe to say that every able bodied man in Cerro Gordo county raises enough to support fifty men.

There are many wheat fields here that produced last season forty five bushels to the acre. The average yield is twenty eight bushels. Three years ago, when I visited northern Iowa, I could buy plenty of wild prairie land for $5 per acre. The same land is now selling for $20 and $30, and the price is marching straight to $50. There are a great many farms now in central and southern Iowa worth $10 per acre.

Do you ask me which is the richest State in the Union?

I answer, Iowa. She has no waste land, but few lakes, no mountains, no barren ridges. She has thirty million acres of black garden soil, throwing out five million acres for roads, river beds, and three small lakes. This whole thirty million acres will be worth in the market in less than twenty five years an average of $60 per acre; or the farm lands of the State will be worth $1,800,000,000—enough to pay the national debt. The farm lands of Iowa are worth more than the farm lands of all New England.

I saw eighty acres of ground yesterday along the Burlington, Cedar Rapids, and Northern road that I could have bought four years ago for $4 an acre. This year the owner raised two thousand four hundred and eighteen bushels of wheat on it, and sold it for 90 cents per bushel, making $2,176 20 off of $320 worth of land. This seems an incredible story, but it is literally true. But the owner of that eighty-acre field to-day holds it at $30 per acre, cheap enough for land that will produce thirty bushels of wheat to the acre. He is a handsome, happy young farmer, with a rosy cheeked wife and four children with cherry lips and dimpled chins. What a splendid citizen is this man! How much greater than Wendell Phillips, or Charles Francis Adams, or Wm. M. Evarts is he! They are parasites, living off the labor of other men. This young farmer next year will produce five thousand bushels of grain, enough to support a whole village full of eastern capitalists. His five thousand bushels of grain will be worth $3,000 here in Iowa, and $8,000 in New York. Thus does this grand citizen contribute annually to the railroad merchants and directors of this country.

The crops are not one-tenth harvested here. Not one bushel of corn in five hundred is husked. The snow has fallen about six inches deep, and the farmers are waiting for a thaw. About one fourth of the wheat is threshed. Two hundred car-loads went to St. Louis last week from this vicinity, to be shipped to England via New Orleans.

The north and south railroad lines in Iowa are transporting immense quantities of wheat and flour, from Iowa and Minnesota to Burlington and St. Louis, to go down the Mississippi.

"Corn, wheat, and pork down from the north, and sugar, cotton, tobacco, and coffee up from the south is fulfilling the law of trade," said President Grinnell of the Central Iowa.

"The east and west railroad lines are losing freight, but the north and south lines are becoming great trunk lines."

THE REPEALING BILL.

We are indebted to Congressman Wren for a correct copy of the bill repealing the Resumption Act that passed the House a few days ago. The Fort amendment was adopted instead of the original bill and is the bill as passed. We append it:

AMENDMENT

That all that portion of the act approved January 14, 1875, entitled "An Act to provide for the resumption of specie payments," which reads as follows, to wit: "And whenever, and so often as circulating notes shall be issued by any such banking association so increasing its capital or circulating notes or so newly organized as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem the legal tender United States notes in excess only of $300,000,000, to the amount of eighty per centum of the sum of the national bank notes so issued to any such banking association as aforesaid, and to continue such redemption as such circulation notes are issued until there shall be outstanding the sum of $300,000,000 of such legal tender United States notes, and no more. And on and after the first day of January, A. D. 1879, the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem, in coin, the United States legal tender notes then outstanding, on their presentation for redemption at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States in the city of New York, in sums of not less than fifty dollars. And to enable the Secretary of the Treasury to prepare and provide for the redemption in this act authorized or required, he is authorized to use any surplus revenues from time to time, in the Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, and to issue, sell and dispose of, at not less than par, in coin, either of the descriptions of bonds of the United States described in the Act of Congress approved July 14, 1870, entitled 'An Act to authorize the refunding of the National debt' with like qualities, privileges and exemptions, to the extent necessary to carry this act into full effect, and to use the proceeds thereof for the purposes aforesaid," be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

There were thirteen other amendments all of which were defeated. The so-called Ward amendment, which was for the benefit of the workingmen, was voted against almost solidly by the Democrats, as we discover by reference to the Congressional Record. For the benefit of the laboring classes we publish the amendment here referred to:

Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to affect the payment of debts due on said first day of January, 1879, for wages of labor, or any debts that may become due after the date aforesaid for wages of labor. But all such debts due on said date, or to become due thereafter, for wages of labor as aforesaid, shall be legally payable only in such coin or notes as shall be by the laws of the United States severally a legal tender, without limitation as to amount, for the payment of all debts, public and private, including duties on imports.

SHAD FISHING COMMENCING.—On yesterday shad could be legally taken from the waters of California. The Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers ought to be, and probably are, well stocked with fish.

On and after the first of January the subscription rates of the Enterprise will be as follows: Daily, delivered by carrier, 25 cents a week; by mail one year $11.50, six months $6.00, and three months $3.50. This is a very important move on the part of the new proprietor, and one that should be heartily and gratefully appreciated by the people of this State. The Enterprise is one of the very best newspapers of the coast, none other having superior advantages. It is a paper that the people of this State should read in preference to San Francisco papers, and now that the subscription price has been reduced every Nevada who is now taking California papers should discontinue them, and patronize home. We are sure the circulation of the Enterprise will be more than doubled in Reno, and there is not a city, town or village in the State, but that should now patronize their own home paper. The reasons are obvious, and need not be stated.

COST OF RAIL TUNNEL.

The entire cost of the Sinto Tunnel, up to August 1, was $2,830,597. From that date to the completion of the work, the expenditure will amount to $250,000. To provide a double track railway and wire rope transportation, and to put everything in thorough order, will take $500,000, making the entire expenditure about $3,600,000. So says the Enterprise.

TWELVE-STORY DWELLINGS.—Think of living in a twelfth story! But high-toned Londoners do it, and call it luxurious. In "West End," in a neighborhood known as Queen Anne's Gate, a banker named Hankey has built some enormous "mansions" overlooking St. James' park and not far from the Metropolitan railway station of that name. The houses are the highest in England—12 stories—perhaps the highest in the world. They are let in flats, upon a new associated principle; and Mr. Hankey has chosen for his own apartments the highest story, where he commands the purest air, and fine views of the London parks, the Surrey hills and the northern heights. The suits of apartments are so eagerly sought after by those who wish to avoid the cares of housekeeping that Mr. Hankey is building a second block of 12 stories high. The tenants are chiefly bachelors, whose suit contains a bedroom and sitting-room; but there are also family suits of 10 rooms. Elevators, of course, travel to each story, and electric bells and speaking tubes are in every room.

BUSINESS INDICATIONS.—One of the most favorable business indications East is the fact that the recent bank failures at Chicago and elsewhere cause no general alarm. It indicates that the business management is now on a more cautious and firmer basis than in the past. Foreign investors are now more easily alarmed than our own, and consequently the threatening of public credit by Congress has already brought home for sale some few United States bonds—just enough to show the color on Wall Street. The political strife in the Senate having blocked action on Bland's Silver bill during the special session, it is now believed that the President's message will deprive it of all opportunity for mischief, all of which the telegraph reports to us.

If the Senate adjourns without acting on the New York Custom House nomination, it is supposed in Washington that the President will renominate Roosevelt for Collector, but send in some other name than that of Prince to succeed Connell as Naval Officer. Prince's nomination was made at the suggestion of Assistant Secretary McCormick, but it dissatisfied the civil service reformers equally with the Conkling Republicans.

On the question of the passage of the bill for universal amnesty, which failed in the House Saturday for want of a two-third vote, the Pacific Coast members were recorded as follows: For passage—Pacheco and Luttrell; and against passage—Page and Davis. Williams would have voted for and Wren against, but they were paired.

SECRETARY SHERMAN'S chief recommendation in his annual report will be that tea and coffee and all articles which do not yield an annual customs revenue of $10,000 be placed on the free list.

SHARON is simply mining his own business.

The contest in the Senate has resulted in a great increase of the power and influence of the Vice President. This is the second time in a very brief period in which this office has been the center of the political storm. "His Superbious Highness," has come on the political stage with great power. A year ago it was not altogether certain but that he was the old judge of a Presidential election. The first Vice President of the United States, beyond doubt, took on that character very distinctly, but none of his successors wielded the same power. What John Lingdon did by virtue of the authority conferred upon him, all the others did by the direction of Congress. The Electoral Commission in which was subsequently organized settled the case against the Vice President for all time. We had a glimpse of an autocrat who, standing above and beyond the passions and excitements of the hour, was to decide all Presidential elections, and then he disappeared forever.

But now we have the Vice President in another and almost as important a role. Kellogg and Butler have been admitted to seats in the Senate. It is the general belief that the claim of Enstis will be allowed. This will leave the Senate as set forth yesterday in the Bulletin—38 Republicans, 36 Democrats, 1 Independent Democrat and Conover and Patterson. Whenever, therefore, the two last-mentioned Senators act with the Democrats, and also Judge Davis, the Senate will be tied, and the decision of the question, whatever it may be, will devolve upon Vice President Wheeler. In this way an officer who usually has no higher function to perform than to execute the rules of the Senate, becomes the supreme legislator. If the Democrats of the House should set their hearts on a particular measure; if the Democrats of the Senate should respond to their wishes and gain over Conover and Patterson, the Vice President will have it in his power to defeat them. His vote will kill the measure. This great responsibility he will also carry into executive session. In many cases by and by his concurrence will be necessary to confirmation.

It is a satisfaction to know that the official who thus suddenly looms up so largely is a gentleman of ripe experience as a statesman, of independent judgment and unwavering integrity. Even venomous partisans have not been able in any manner to smirch the character of Wm. A. Wheeler. He will be the controller of all legislation of a partisan nature that may be brought during the present session of Congress.—S. F. Bulletin.

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK OF THE STATE.

Every one who can do so is planting grain, in the hope of a bountiful harvest and high prices next season. Appearances favor both anticipations. The season so far has been exceedingly mild, while the rainfall recorded to date has been a full average, taking the State as a whole. Summer fallowed grain is showing finely, and a greater breadth of land than formerly is being prepared for winter wheat. Should the early promise of the season, therefore, be realized, California may calculate next harvest upon the largest cereal product yet recorded. And, indeed, we are inclined to believe that even with a moderately dry season will be the case, because of the large breadth of idle land brought into cultivation and the increased area of irrigated land. With respect to prices the outlook is equally favorable. The European war does not promise soon to come to an end, and therefore little export of breadstuffs from southeastern Europe may be expected. If enough is grown to meet home demand and military requirements, it will be as much as can be reasonably counted on; whereas, should the war become general, involving all the great powers, America must be regarded as the sole available source of supply for at least the British market. Imports into England of Australian wheat would be next to impossible, owing to the risk of capture by hostile cruisers and the enhanced value created by war risks. Small as this source of supply is, it must be written off when considering a general war contingency. The United States and Canada are therefore the mainstay of the wheat-consuming nations of Europe, because India stands in precisely the same relation toward England in the event of war that Australia does; and besides, India has to replace its famine waste, which must be a considerable item. High prices for next season's crop may therefore be safely calculated upon, unless some unforeseen contingency compels peace abroad. Moreover, the harvest in the British Isles has been light and the produce inferior, so that high rates must rule for the balance of last season's crop which has yet to be marketed. The agricultural outlook of the State is consequently excellent. Farm produce brings high prices now, and may be expected to bring remunerating rates all through this season and the next. Beef, mutton and pork fetch higher figure than ruled for several seasons back; while by the cultivation of alfalfa and root crops farmers can feed and fatten a greater number of domestic animals per acre than formerly. No industry in the State promises better in the near future than farming.—S. F. Post.

The President's Message was read to Congress Monday. It is lengthy and treats on all important public issues.

When Andrew Jackson was a young man attending court at Rogersville, Tenn., he lived at a hotel famous for its good cheer. One day, as he sat on the piazza, a youth came riding along dressed in the pink of fashion, his eyes fixed on vacancy, replying not to the salutes which it was the custom of the times for strangers to give each other. At a glance Jackson saw the fop, and determined to play the part of a Boniface. He welcomed the silent stranger with distinguished politeness, and the company about the fire made room for him. But the automaton was not to be won to conversation. He walked up and down the room contemplating his own graces, and presently exclaimed, commencing: "Landlord, I want supper." Supper was spread, and the stately youth devoured it. Then he resumed his walk, answering not a word to the remarks of his dresd circle of lawyers and judges, and Jackson grew more and more wrathful. "Landlord, I want to go to bed," was the next demand; and he added, "I want a room to myself." Jackson represented that the house was full, and there was not a single room to be had; the young fellow was not to be moved. Jackson disappeared, and shortly returned, announcing that the guest's room was ready. The two went off through the front door, all the company following, and stopped—at the corner, through the cracks of which a light was shining. "There's your room," said Jackson. "Do you wish to insult me, sir?" "No insult at all, sir. You vowed you would not sleep in a room with any one and demanded a room by yourself. There it is, sir." I vow I will not sleep there," said the dandy. "By the Eternal, you shall!" exclaimed Jackson, and grabbing the youth, he sent him at one toss into the crib and locked the door. And there he stayed all night and in the morning he was released and dismissed breakfastless by the impetuous Jackson.

SOCIAL LIFE IN WISCONSIN.—They are having "mum sociables" at Wausau, for the benefit of the churches. An admission fee is charged and after the ladies and gents are all in they must not speak. When all are seated about the room, the lights are turned out, and when one of the party squeals the lights are lit, and she is to tell what she is squealing about. If she refuses to tell then she is fined two shillings, which is usually paid by the cuss who sits next to her. It is said to be better than a succotash festival.—En.

Gov. Vance tells of a New Orleans man who died and left the seventh article in his will as follows: "Whereas, it seems that my son John, who is inclined to play poker, which is a dangerous game to those who play it, I leave my son John $10,000 that he may go to Halifax, North Carolina, and learn how to play the game."
